

Adaptive Immune Response

Antibodies produced only by B-cells (B-lymphocytes). Antibodies circulate in blood and enter interstitial fluid during inflammation, but they do not kill pathogens directly (they facilitate phagocytosis, prevent pathogens from attaching to body cells, activate complement, neutralize toxins).

B-cells (fight by antibodies)

T-cells (fight directly, helpers and killers)

